Consider the Husband

For He's a Jolly Good Fellow, and Deserves a Summer Vacation Break—Which Nobody Can Deny

Giving means! Vivienne, four on the Farm—wherever it may be—give the husband who may have to remain at home on occasions, every consideration. Give him a rest—again!

Then see that your guests are shared for a husband's benefit. See that it contains refrigerator and easy-to-prepare canned foods which will not only fit his every need, but which will convert your home into a haven for other homeless husbands. Your own summer vacation will be a real holiday because you can rest assured that the husband at home is also happy. He won't even stay home long enough to mow the lawn or water your favorite begonia plant.

Made for Man Foods

Getting down to brass tacks—for those times when he may want to prepare dinner for himself, when he is tired of restaurants, stock one shelf with such wholesome foods as canned beef, vegetables, whole kernels of corn, delicious soups such as asparagus, cream of mushroom, chicken with noodles, his favorite fruits—whatever they may be—furnishing for dessert, canned mixed fruits and the newly perfected Brown Betty in cans.

For entertaining when a Host itself. See that it contains such things as lobster, crab meat or clams, shrimps and other canned fish, line of cocktail crackers and pretzels, a very large supply of fruit juices such as grapefruit juice, grape juice and shaddock, canned pineapple juice. Mix like a cocktail—serve cold. Also, see that you have on hand a supply of canned vegetables and also such ready-to-serve meats as Hungarian goulash, Irish stew, chicken and canned baked ham. Add for dessert a variety of canned fruits and puddings—and you are ready to entertain in the most stylish your friends. Then here's to Happy Days!

Suppose You Suggest

If you have visitors about wellin-laws, you might serve a few menus like these. Don't be disappointed if they aren't used. You can make out of them yourself when you have house. For men have a habit of wanting what they want. And they have are two basic successful menus for canned food meals:

A Man-Size Meal With Femme Appeal

It's a Good Buy at Twenty Five Cents Per Person

MEN and meals—perhaps the reasons they "slithered" in because they are definitely linked up. Well prove it. Men for meals is as essential as meals for men—for a man without a man is all most, not quite, as depressing a thing as a man without a meal.

Further evidence of this fact is the fact that women seldom eat real meals without men. Tea and coffee, soups, sandwiches, dessert and coffee, yes. But when the man of the house comes home unexpectedly he says the thing which has been said many times before:

"Don't you eat when I'm not home?"

Main Dish Salads

Meals for men, however, need not be the steak-and-onion orgies that we are apt to imagine. Now and then men like a dinner whose main dish is a salad, providing it is a good substantial salad and that it is preceded by a sustaining soup and accompanied by hot bread.

These meals do not need to cost a lot either. It is true that as a rule a man pays more for meals away from home than women do. But this is because he prefers coffee shops to tea-rooms, and oyster bars to soda-fountains.

Make up the difference in the household budget, by serving meals now and then which cost little, but which afford a lot—in enjoyment and nutriment. We are suggesting a sample menu that serves four persons for one dollar.

MENU

Cream of Cabbage Soup with Toast Pieces 10¢
Tuna and Apple Salad 15¢
Potato Chips 10¢ Rye Bread 5¢
Baking Powder Biscuits 10¢
Chocolate Ice Cream 10¢
Coffee 5¢

Tuna and Apple Salad: Combine the contents of one 7-ounce can of tuna fish with two-thirds cup of sliced celery, one tablespoon sliced green pepper and a few grains of salt. Sprinkle two tablespoons lemon juice over one cup of diced apples and add. Moisten with one-third cup of mayonnaise. Chill and serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Chocolate Ice Cream: Mix together in the top of a double boiler three tablespoons sugar and one tablespoon flour. Add two-thirds cup milk or diluted evaporated milk slowly, stirring until smooth. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Pour slowly over one slightly beaten egg, return to double boiler and cook one minute, stirring constantly. Do not cook long enough to curdle. Add one-fourth cup canned chocolate syrup and let cool. Add one-half cup cream, whipped to a custard, and turn into refrigerator freezing trays. Freeze, beating once during freezing process.*

YOU DON'T HAVE TO "BREAK IN" THE FORD V-8

You can drive it 50 miles an hour the day you buy it

THE FORD V-8 is ready for normal driving when you buy it. There is no tedious period of breaking-in for 500 or 1000 miles. You can drive it up to 50 miles an hour the first day. And after the first hundred miles you can drive it as fast as you desire.

That means greater motoring enjoyment for every motorist. It is especially important to motorists who are thinking about a new car for a vacation trip — to physicians, salesmen and all those who use a car for business. Instead of dragging along at slow speeds for days, you can make good time from the start.

The reason for this is as important as the result. The Ford V-8 needs no breaking-in because of unusual accuracy in the manufacture of moving parts and the smoothness of bearing surfaces. Clearances are correct when you buy the car. It is not necessary to depend on a long wearing-in period to eliminate tightness and insure smooth running. Longer life, greater economy and better performance are bound to result from such precision methods. The Ford V-8 gives you fine-car construction, along with fine-car performance, comfort, safety and beauty.

SHORE SERVICE

By ARCHEY C. NEW

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate. WNU Service.

"JUST what," demanded Jean, "does your love for me mean to you?"

Her lustrous eyes, set in a lovely oval face, did not reflect the excitement of her query. She stared across the lake, vacantly, and idly poked at the sand with her toe.

Something in her tone arrested the amorous declaration at the tip of Dick Wendell's tongue.

"Why, wonderful!" he replied, soberly.

"It—means everything. With things the way they are, my job gone, your love—is all I've got left. Except for—"

He pointed slightly to Pilgrims' Rest, the lake-shore property, a few acres of green lawn and beach sand, with its large spacious pavilion and sleeping quarters.

"I'd sell this if you didn't love me so much. I'd sell it tomorrow to give us something to get married on. Why, honey," he warmed to the subject, "it's—"

"Not talk of it," she interrupted him, with quiet determination.

"What would we do after that money's gone?"

"Why, by that time maybe some one'll give me a job."

She regarded him curiously. "Who's the some one—a super-man?"

"How should I know?" he answered, rather resentfully.

These women, he reflected sourly, had no idea of the times.

"Some man," he told her, patiently, "or some corporation with capital, something that looks like money, something to work with."

"And soon spunk," she threw at him, springing to her feet irritably and shaking off the sand.

"And ideas. And push. I'm going to look for mother."

"But, Jean," he called after her, "what can I use ideas on? What can I use for money?"

She stopped, indecisively, and looked back at him with a little pity.

"You know already," she told him, flatly. "This." And she waved her hand over the place.

"But you don't want me to sell it," he protested.

"No."

Dick wondered, then laughed bolsterously.

"You mean—farm it?" he gulped.

"Why, I couldn't raise enough on these few acres to—"

"I don't know anything about it," was her cool retort.

"When I marry, I want a husband, not a cog-wheel." She turned quickly and fled towards the pavilion.

"Lucky stiff, Dick Wendell!" commented Mack Foster, as Jean joined him, and her buddy, Claire Hollins, on the porch.

"Greatest little shore on the lake, health, looks, fanciest flatsos—"

"He's still got the shore, the health, and the looks," replied Jean, dryly.

"You might tell him that," she added, cryptically, as she disappeared inside the house.

"Methinks," ventured Mack, whimsically, "that the course of true love's struck an air pocket—it looks bumpy. Looks like a job for the old trusty pal."

"Better keep out of it." Claire warned him.

"It's their party."

"Sure, too, Claire-chil'," Mack reminded her.

"We innocent bystanders might get hit. Think I want some fool dame in the shore parties to freeze up on us in a hot summer?"

* * * * *

On an afternoon a month later, Mack nosed his sedan off the highway and down the short dirt road leading to Pilgrim's Rest.

As they drew near the gate posts at the entrance to the back grove, a vigorous protest arose from the back seat.

"I'm not going another inch," insisted Jean. "He's got some party there."

And Mack and Claire amazedly shared her glance at numerous couples on the lawn and beach, and, three and three hundred yards off-shore, the vivid maroon of Dick's boat, filled with men riding tube rods.

"What of it?" decried Mack. "Maybe he's sold the place. Have fun."

"I'm sure I don't know," Jean told him, with marked indifference. "I haven't seen him for a month. And now, let's go back."

"We can't," explained Mack, indignantly, "until I get out and inquire around a bit." He jumped out, leaving the girls in the car and went around the side of the house, passed a group of strange boys and girls on the steps, mounted to the porch and stepped dead.

Through a group of people, singing, some munching sandwiches, he espied Dick, himself.

"Mack Foster!" cried Dick, leaping from the table and springing to Mack's side.

"Just in time, folks. Meet the one and original Mack Foster," and he led him among the groups, introducing him.

"Where's Claire?"

Mack drew him away from the others, and they had a few minutes' while pseudo-consolation. Mack's face registered surprise, delight, annoyance, and a few emotions hard to define.

He finally went back alone to his car.

"Come on, you two," he told them. "It's all fixed."

"I will not," objected Jean, strenuously. "Who are those people?"

"Customers," said Mack, succinctly. "Come on."

"Customers?" echoed Jean. "Has he opened a store?"

"Yeah!" grunted Mack, grimly. "Selling outdoor life, lakeside delights, to private parties at a dollar-fifty a head. Boating, bathing, fishing, crabbing, quoits, eats, drinks, romance, entertainment, music," here Mack grimaced, "all for one admission. Come on: I've paid him."

"Paid him?" cried Jean, horrified. "For me, too?"

"Why not?" Mack almost jeered at her.

"Why should you be exempt?"

"Can you tell me?" Jean asked Dick a few minutes later, with frosty sweetness, "where Miss Hollins and I may change to our bathing suits?"

"Jean!" Dick abandoned a group, delightedly, and put out both hands toward her. But she gave him a cool look and put her hands behind her.

Dick stared at her incredulously, then, compressing his lips tightly, waved formally to the inside rooms.

"This way, miss," he said.

* * * * *

"Jean." Dick greeted her, very soberly, as he came on her alone a few hours later on the beach. She started up, but he put out a restraining hand.

"Wait—just a minute. Mack's out in the boat now. I want to return something to you." And, sheepishly, he tossed a dollar and a half-dollar into her lap, then turned away slowly.

"Dick," she called after him, softly.

"Take it back. I—I've had my money's worth. I've been—thinking, Dick. How'd you do it?"

"?"—these shore parties?"

She nodded.

He again looked sheepish. "Mack gave me the idea; said he'd rather come here than anywhere on earth. I took the idea and worked it up. Figured it out there were lots of nice people in town who'd love a little shore party with everything that goes with 'em. I had what you called 'something to work with' so I worked it. I've had twenty separate parties so far with thirty to fifty dollars' profit on each one. Eats are the only overhead. Its my own laundry. But honey—it was hard. I wanted to keep this place just for my friends—for you. But I—well, I had to—"

"To make good," she added, softly. "I know. I don't mind. I—I'm glad, Dick. And—say—does a little kiss go with the rest?" impishly.

"Lots of 'em." He started in to give service immediately, adding, between breaths, "for special customers."

HERE'S THE THING FOR YOU TO DO:

"AIR-CONDITION" your motor! Stop at any Yellow and Black American Gas Pump and fill up your tank with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Then keep your car "air-conditioned" with "AIR-CONDITIONED" American Gas. Even though it costs us more to produce, it is being sold at regular gas price from Maine to Florida and inland by thousands of American dealers and stations.

MORE MILES: Greater net power and higher anti-knock rating net more miles to the gallon than any other regular gasoline.

How many times do Gas on Stomach, Headache, Sour Stomach, "That Tired Feeling," That "Morning After" Feeling, Neuralgia, Rheumatic, Sciatic, Muscular or Periodic Pains keep you at home or interfere with your working a full day's work?

All these troubles are caused or made worse by too much acid in your body. To correct this condition take
